9. Unfiltered: Inside an Adult-Film Star's Wine Party

We don't know what you were hoping to see, but when we posted a head shot of Savanna Samson with that teaser, our Unfiltered column got a record number of hits. We were talking about her wine, folks. The Vivid star and new vintner followed up her 2005 debut release of Sogno Uno, a red blend from Italy, with an Italian white, Sogno Due, which she unveiled at a party for HBO documentary Thinking XXX. Samson even outdid Pamela Anderson, who earned honors for most-clicked-on photo on our homepage when she celebrated her upcoming wedding with two words: Champagne. All we can say is: Get your mind out of the gutter.

10. Fire Damages Silver Oak Winery in Napa

One of California's most popular wineries got off to a bad start in 2006, with a fire following in the footsteps of a winter flood. The blaze destroyed about $2 million of 2004 Cabernet aging in barrel in a historic building that had been Silver Oak's original home, but fortunately no winery staff were injured and most of the winery's upcoming releases were undamaged.
